

SUMMARIES

УДК 343.575

V. Voronko

FEATURES OF THE MECHANISM OF INDIVIDUAL CRIMINAL BEHAVIOR OF PERSONS WHO COMMIT VIOLENT CRIMES AGAINST PERSONS UNDER INFLUENCE OF DRUGS

The main elements of the mechanism of individual criminal behavior should be attributed provided moral formation of personality, motivation, specific life situation , the decision to commit a crime and the process of committing a crime (behavioral act). Accordingly, all these elements should be considered in relation to the phenomenon of violent crime.

Certain number of special criminological research found that the most characteristic features of the killers is increased susceptibility expectations threats from the environment. If anxiety is kept at a constant anxiety and uncertainty, then the person can defend his status, social existence by making selfish and mercenary crimes. A way to calm that person – alcohol, drugs or other substance, or violence against a person acting agent. The combination of the same drugs and violence resulting in violent crime.

Because violent crimes against the person are different from other types of criminal behavior, not only in the criminal assault, but the content of the individual elements of the mechanism of individual behavior of persons who commit them.